Close only counts in horseshoes.
And heart attacks.

You’re having a heart attack. Whether you live or die depends largely on how quickly medical personnel can stabilize you. Which means this is not the time to risk a 45-minute drive.

This is the time to get into the hands of the nearest qualified emergency personnel you can find.

Fortunately, if you live in the Sturgis area, that means you’ll find some pretty qualified hands. With 24/7 coverage by highly skilled and experienced physicians and support staff, and award-winning patient care. All backed by a network of the region’s finest heart doctors, surgeons and facilities.

That’s what you’ll find at Sturgis Hospital. You’ll find it all nice and close. And when you’re having a heart attack, close counts.
